The pioneers who went to Michigan City Tuesday report a good time. It was an ideal day for the excursionists. Rev. Howard said it was an ideal place for children. There are many amusements and all of them cheap.

The recent wreck on the Pere Marquette railroad with its awful toll in human lives becomes more appalling when it is realized that it would never have happened had orders been followed. It is a frightful tribute to the man who blunders.

Walnuts will be unusually plentiful this year. Already the nut is very large, being from two to two and one-half inches in circumference. Last year there was a scarcity of this variety of nuts. It is also said that there will be many hickory nuts, as well as the other smaller varieties of nuts.

Mrs. Richard Allender, 50, died of hydrophobia Monday afternoon at her home in Brown county. Two weeks ago a strange dog attacked her and bit her on one of her hands. She took no serious precautions, but the wound refused to heal. Monday morning she suddenly developed hydrophobia and died in great agony within a few hours.

An Indiana man was struck by lightning the other day and lived through it. The shoe was torn from one foot, his trousers were torn to shreds and a bunch of keys were mucked into a solid lump. It is said that the Hoosier's first words upon regaining consciousness were: "I guess Marie's been takin' this here physical culture; she never got the best of me like that before."

Labor Parade is Abandoned. Chicago has seen the last of its Labor day parades, at least for several years to come.

The annual long march through the streets by thousands of unionists, wearing the picturesque uniforms of their trades, was abandoned Monday by the Federation of Labor and the Associated Building Trades as being an "antiquated and luxurious" method of displaying labor's strength before the public. With the two leading labor bodies against the project there is no possibility of a parade this year or next.

President John Fitzpatrick of the federation advised the unions to save the money which they would expend in buying uniforms, banners, carriages and bands, and put it into a big defense fund, with which he said labor "may keep a stiff upper lip and talk as saucily as it pleases to employers."

The Morton Statue.

The unveiling of the Morton monument marks a new expression of Indiana's gratitude to the men who fought the war for the Union to a successful conclusion. For while Morton was not a soldier his services to the state and nation were essentially military. The act of 1905 providing for the monument unveiled Tuesday recites that no man in civil life except Abraham Lincoln, tendered as great service to the country as Oliver P. Morton. It also recalls that "the State of Indiana has never erected a monument of any other suitable memorial within the borders of the state to perpetuate his name and memory." This fact and the memorial on the subject from the Indiana G. A. R. led the Legislature to provide for the present monument.

Some have thought that the Morton statue in the Circle was erected by the State. That is not the case. That monument was erected by Morton's personal and political friends. The present monument is the only memorial of any kind erected to its great war Governor, and it has the unique distinction of being the only one of the kind erected by any State.

The people of Indiana never have forgotten Governor Morton and we trust they never will. Morton was precisely the type of man needed in the civil war era in Indiana. His courage and zeal, his patriotism, his never-failing faith, his extraordinary executive ability and his supreme devotion to the work that was laid on him, all combined to make one of the greatest men that the country produced during the great struggle.

The record of Indiana, and it was brilliant, during those times was largely his record. His enthusiasm inspired the people, and they responded nobly to every call made on them. No State in the Union sent so many men to the war in proportion to population as did Indiana. There seemed to be no limit to the ability or willingness of the people to contribute men and means to the support of the Government. In extracting the leader we would not detract in any way from the record made by the people. But leadership is worth much. Men are inspired by it when it is what it should be. With a weak, timid or inefficient man at the head of the State government in 1861 Indiana would not have made the showing that she did make. But the people had confidence in their Governor, and it did not take the soldiers long to learn that he was their friend, ever jealous for their welfare. The bravest men can not fight well under a commander whom they distrust. They will do their best, and make every effort to supplement his deficiencies. But they can not help being affected by the pressing influence resulting from their lack of confidence in the man who is their leader.

The people of Indiana were subjected to no such distressing experience. Ready to do their utmost, they were inspired to highest endeavor by the knowledge that the man in command was worthy to lead. And he did lead. No responsibility was too great for him to assume, no burden too heavy for him to carry. He gave himself, body and soul, to the prosecution of his gigantic task, and had but one object in life—to save the Union from disruption. All the difficulties that beset him he overcame, and won for himself a national fame as one of the great war Governors—Indiana thinks the greatest of them—and a permanent place in the affections of the people of this State. He stands first on our roll of honor. We have had many able and worthy public servants, but none that can contest Morton's preeminence. It is sometimes said that great men always come when they are needed; that they are born out of the crisis. Whether this be true or not, it certainly is true that the need felt forty and more years ago was entirely met when Morton appeared on the scene.

We do well to cherish his fame, but we shall do better if we emulate him in devotion to duty and entire absorption in the service of country. He lived in stormy times, and played his part on a conspicuous stage. But even in peace there are battles to be fought and enemies to be conquered. And ever man, no matter how obscure his station, can show the same faithfulness and courage, and the same love of country that marked the life of the great war Governor.—Indianapolis News.

Old Editor Retires.

Charles G. Powell, the oldest active editor in Indiana, has sold the Laporte Republican to the Herald Printing Company and the Republican will be discontinued. Mr. Powell was one of the founders of the Herald and was its editor for many years. When the Herald and Chronicle were consolidated twenty-five years ago he accepted an appointment at Washington and was there several years. Later he returned to Laporte and established the Republican which has been noted for reminiscences of public men and politics of thirty to sixty years ago. Mr. Powell had been in politics almost sixty years and probably no man now living knew more prominent men of the war period than he did. Old age and impaired health is the cause of his retirement. He will carry with him the good will and best wishes of the entire editorial fraternity of Indiana.

Monument Unveiled.

The monument erected at Indianapolis, in honor of Oliver P. Morton, Indiana's war governor, was unveiled Tuesday afternoon.

The unveiling was of state-wide importance and interest for C. A. R. members from all over Indiana were in attendance. Members from about forty posts participated in the day's exercises, starting with the parade in the early afternoon.

Frank Brown Shot.

Shortly before 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon Miss Florence Gray, an inmate of Pearl Corey's resort in Michigan City and a former inmate of the resort just north of Clear Lake this city, shot and instantly killed Frank Brown, better known as "Taters" Brown, a well-known police character, who recently served a term in the Laporte county jail.

Several days ago, John Gallert of Three Oaks, Brown and George Chapman and Ernest Behler, also of Three Oaks, went to Chicago and there had a "time." Returning to Michigan City Saturday night they had been spending much of their time in the saloons and at this resort. Brown it appears, was madly in love with the Gray girl. When the shooting occurred the girl was at the top of the stairway to the second floor, while Brown was on the second or third step. The bullet penetrated the head and Brown fell backward against Chapman. The police were called and Brown was taken to St. Anthony's hospital, but he died before the place was reached. He made no statement. His body was taken to the morgue. The girl and the three other men were taken to the police station, but the police are trying to secure a statement from the woman and the men before they inform them that Brown is dead.

The woman will be given a preliminary hearing Wednesday, after which she will be brought to the county jail in Laporte, to be held until her trial in court. The only statement so far obtained from her was to the effect that the shooting followed a lover's quarrel and that Brown was jealous of her because of the attentions she received from other men.—Laporte Herald.

Just a Possibility.

Japan, undoubtedly, is peaceably disposed toward us. The feeling is reciprocal. Nothing is further from the thought of either power than to fly at the other's throat. That is beyond the pale of argument.

But international relationships sometimes change. The British throne, that once combined with Prussia to destroy Napoleon's army at Waterloo, now convives with France to hold exasperated Germany at bay. The European power that is nearest us in sympathy today is our hated enemy of 1776 and 1812 and 1861. It was France that helped us win our independence. It was France that stood by Spain in hope to see us humbled by her in the war for Cuba.

A nation is for us so long as her interests are identical with ours, or more accurately, just so long as she thinks they are. But when we become, or seem to her to have become, instead of a help to her advancement an obstacle to her upward march to power, then she will mark us for a foe.

It is to be hoped it is to be expected, it is to be confidently predicted, that peace will reign indefinitely between Japan and the United States. But so long as there is a chance of the other thing, then any policy which would leave us unprepared or disadvantaged in event of war is unpatriotically and criminally neglectful and shortsighted.

Wild Man Identified.

The "wild man" who terrorized the country around Gary for several days and was shot to death last week in a desperate battle in which he wounded six men, was identified Monday as John Mares, a Bohemian, who had been employed a considerable time in the Great Lakes Dredging Company says the Hammond Times.

Mares was identified by a letter written to his father, Matias Mares, in Kri Tiseck, Bohemia, from where John Mares had come. The letter was found in the tattered clothing of the wild man, and was left in the possession of the Lake county coroner.

"The devil says they are after me," wrote Mares in Bohemian, "and that I must kill myself. They will have a fight if they get me. I want my mother and my sister and my brother and my sweetheart to pray for me. The devil says so."

The rest of the letter was rambling but there was a vein that showed that the man contemplated self-destruction more than the destruction of others. A time card on the dredging company was also found among the effects.

Temperance Rallyes.

The Rev. E. S. Shumaker, of the Indiana Anti-Saloon league, will deliver his illustrated lecture in the Taber Evangelical church, Liberty township, Thursday evening. Friday evening a meeting will be held in the Conservative Brethren church, Liberty township, three and a half miles northwest of Lapaz. Rev. Mr. Shumaker will be the speaker. Many temperance workers of Liberty and Union townships, St. Joseph county, and of Polk and North townships of Marshall county, will attend the meeting Friday night. There will be good singing at both churches. The meeting at Lapaz Friday evening of last week, was a very successful one in every respect and the anti-saloon league is gaining friends every day.

Observes Golden Anniversary.

St. John's German Lutheran church of Laporte fittingly celebrated its fiftieth anniversary Sunday. The German Lutheran church is the largest and in many respects the most influential church in Laporte. The records show that since the organization of the church there have been 3,673 persons baptized; 1,952 confirmed; 1,421 buried; 93,625 partaken of communion; 925 couples married.

Horticultural Program Announced.

The Indiana Horticultural Society, which will hold its annual meeting at Purdue University Aug. 7-8, has announced its program, and several men widely known over the state will deliver addresses on subjects that are of interest to fruit growers and farmers.

President W. E. Stone of Purdue University will deliver an address of welcome, and President H. H. Swain of the association of South Bend, will respond. W. T. Blythe of the United States Weather Bureau at Indianapolis will lecture on "Frosts" on Wednesday, and Prof. C. G. Woodbury of Purdue will speak on "Co-Operative Horticultural Work at the Experiment Station" on the same day.

Others who will be on the first day's program and their subjects are as follows: Mrs. A. H. Bogue of Lagrange, Ind. "The Local Horticultural Society and What It Should Do;" Mrs. L. E. Ferguson of White Pigeon, Mich. "Culture of Lagrange County;" Prof. W. C. Latta of Purdue University, "Relations of Farmers Institutes to the Horticultural Institutes of the State;" Prof. J. C. Whitten of the University of Missouri, "Technical Horticultural Education."

On Thursday the visitors will witness demonstrative work in spraying by the Purdue Experiment Station, after which the lectures will be resumed, the speakers and their subjects being: James T. Carver of Greencastle, "What is Thorough Spraying and How to Do It;" Samuel A. Hazlett of Greencastle, "How I Marketed My Apples;" Prof. Jas. Doan of Purdue, "Our Insect Friends;" Prof. J. C. Whitten of the University of Missouri, "Commercial Orchard;" Dr. H. E. Barnard of Indianapolis, "Value of the Pure Food Law to Horticulturists;" Prof. S. D. Conner of Purdue, "Effects of Commercial Fertilizers on the Quality of Potatoes." Prizes will be given for the best displays of fruits and vegetables of many varieties.

Prosperity for Preachers.

There has been some complaint that salaries have not been raised along with wage and the cost of living, but apparently the time has arrived for a distribution of prosperity among the salaried masses. The movement begins in Delaware and Maryland, where the farmers are exchanging baskets of fruit for baskets of money and considering the question of a fair division of the proceeds.

Farmers as a class are conservative and are content to let city statisticians sing loud exulting songs over their Croesus-like accumulations from fields and orchards. But it seems that the Delaware and Maryland farmers are not only piling up the cash at present, but forming great expectations over dollar wheat. Under the double influence the psychological moment has arrived with them for profit sharing, and as a result we are informed that the salary of Rev. W. L. White, a Methodist preacher at Chesterton, Md., has been increased.

This is the only positive announcement concerning an actual increase as yet, but it is declared that the pay of other preachers in Chesterton will also be advanced because the farmer parishioners are making money so fast.

Laughing at the Elks.

Dealers are laughing loudly over the resolution adopted by the Elks' convention to discard the elk's tooth as an emblem of the order so that there may be an end to the wholesale slaughtering of the elk. They say 50 cents a pair would be robbery for the commercial elk's tooth of today, and that if members have been paying $10 a pair, as stated at the convention, they are "easy marks."

There will never be any scarcity of the "teeth" while a packing house bone is in existence. Practically no genuine teeth are in the market, they say, all the stock originating in that bone-yard "by-product." The Elks at a later session rescinded their action concerning the emblem, but whether because they had gained enlightenment or because they were determined to have the teeth at any cost is not known.

Rolling Family Gets $2164 Back Pension.

A back pension amounting to $2164 was issued through W. H. Love, to Mrs. Della D. Morrow, Henry B. and Roland Ostrum, better known as Rolling, Friday.

CURE YOUR KIDNEYS.

Do Not Endanger Life When a Plymouth Citizen Shows You the Cure.

Why will people continue to suffer the agonies of kidney complaint, backache, urinary disorders, lameness, headaches, languor, why allow themselves to become chronic invalids when a certain cure is offered them?

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use, because it gives to the kidneys the help they need to perform their work.

If you have any, even one, of the symptoms of kidney diseases, cure yourself now, before diabetes, dropsy or Bright's disease sets in. Read this Plymouth testimony.

Peter Brickson, farmer, living four miles northwest of Plymouth, Ind., says: "During the spring of 1906, I was suffering untold agonies from distressing pains across the back, through the loins and over the lower part of my stomach. The action of the kidneys was not normal, and the secretions were highly colored. I doctored unsuccessfully for the complaint and finally went to the Oak Drug Store and procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. I used this remedy with all kinds of good results and they cured my malady at once. I am able to speak in high terms of Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

The next place of meeting of the Federation of Catholic societies will be Boston.

An anti-Jewish riot has broken out in the Polish town of Skenitz, on the Austrian frontier. A large number of Jews have already been killed or injured. The terrified inhabitants are fleeing to the Austrian territory for protection.

The frequent rains have injured the cut hay crop and postponed the wheat harvest. They are also interfering with the cultivation of the corn. The situation is rather discouraging to the farmers, although things will probably turn out all right in the end, as they usually do in old Indiana.
